mod 6game play Jul 5, 2015 Hello everyone, I am trying to make a rooster look as close to in real life as possible. Despite the fact that I think my chicken is done, I don't want it to look too flimsy. I am doing as much as I can with the clothes as I would a Final Fantasy protagonist, but the wings and the head are not as fleshed out as I would like them to be. I just want a really fluffy guy. The chin and neck area is where I need help, please do not get rid of the hair in there, I want it to look realistic. I do not want to use a reflection box, but just as realistically as I can make it. I also want to make the beak a bit lighter than the rest of the chicken, but not so much that it looks out of place. I am also worried about the feet. If the feet looks similar to the feet in my first version. I would like for the feet to be very similar, but not exactly the same. I know the feet look like they are done, but I would like for them to be a bit more realistic. Rendering process Jul 8, 2015 Well, I've started making the flock (which was a huge pain in the ass to do). I am almost finished with the flock. In the meantime, I have been trying to make the environment look a bit more realistic. At this point, it is just for inspiration. I am still trying to think of what I want the environment to look like. I'm not finished with the environment, but I'm close. I don't have a reflection box yet, so I'm not sure how I'm going to get this to work. Jul 12, 2015 I started on the environment today. I am not sure how to start this, I wanted to make something that looks like a dreamy, foresty type of environment. If I can make something like that, I think it'll be a lot easier to make this look realistic. I have nothing to show so far. Aug 12, 2015 I started working on the environment today, and this is how it's going so far. Now I am going to try and find a reflection box. I want to do this in such a way so that I can render it in cycles. I am not sure if I have thought of everything I would need to do for this to be completed, but I hope I can make
